Data Protection Officer: Ryan Robinson - gdpr@nexusrental.co.uk

Nexus collects and processes personal data relating to its employees in order to manage the employment relationship. Nexus is committed to being transparent about how it collects and uses that data and to meeting its data protection obligations.

What information does Nexus collect?

Nexus collects and processes a range of information about you. This includes:

- your name, address and contact details, including email address and telephone number, date of birth and gender;
- the terms and conditions of your employment;
- details of your qualifications, skills, experience and employment history, including start and end dates, with previous employers and with Nexus;
- information about your remuneration, including entitlement to benefits such as pensions or insurance cover;
- details of your bank account and national insurance number;
- information about your marital status, next of kin, dependants and emergency contacts;
- information about your nationality and entitlement to work in the UK;
- information about your criminal record;
- details of your schedule (days of work and working hours) and attendance at work;
- details of periods of leave taken by you, including holiday, sickness absence, family leave and sabbaticals, and the reasons for the leave;
- details of any disciplinary or grievance procedures in which you have been involved, including any warnings issued to you and related correspondence;
- assessments of your performance, including appraisals, performance reviews and ratings, performance improvement plans and related correspondence;
- information about medical or health conditions, including whether or not you have a disability for which Nexus needs to make reasonable adjustments; and
- equal opportunities monitoring information, including information about your ethnic origin, sexual orientation, health and religion or belief.

Nexus may collect this information in a variety of ways. For example, data might be collected through application forms, CVs or resumes; obtained from your passport or other identity documents such as your driving licence; from forms completed by you at the start of or during employment (such as benefit nomination forms); from correspondence with you; or through interviews, meetings or other assessments.

Nexus seeks information from third parties with your consent only.

Data will be stored in a range of different places, including in your personnel file, in Nexus' HR management systems and in other IT systems (including Nexus' email system).

Why does Nexus process personal data?

Nexus needs to process data to enter into an employment contract with you and to meet its obligations under your employment contract. For example, it needs to process your data to provide you with an employment contract, to pay you in accordance with your employment contract and to administer benefits, pension and insurance entitlements.

In some cases, Nexus needs to process data to ensure that it is complying with its legal obligations. For example, it is required to check an employee's entitlement to work in the UK, to deduct tax, to comply with health and safety laws and to enable employees to take periods of leave to which they are entitled.

In other cases, Nexus has a legitimate interest in processing personal data before, during and after the end of the employment relationship. Processing employee data allows Nexus to:

- run recruitment and promotion processes;
- maintain accurate and up-to-date employment records and contact details (including details of who to contact in the event of an emergency), and records of employee contractual and statutory rights;
- operate and keep a record of disciplinary and grievance processes, to ensure acceptable conduct within the workplace;
- operate and keep a record of employee performance and related processes, to plan for career development, and for succession planning and workforce management purposes;
- operate and keep a record of absence and absence management procedures, to allow effective workforce management and ensure that employees are receiving the pay or other benefits to which they are entitled;
- obtain occupational health advice, to ensure that it complies with duties in relation to individuals with disabilities, meet its obligations under health and safety law, and ensure that employees are receiving the pay or other benefits to which they are entitled;

- operate and keep a record of other types of leave (including maternity, paternity, adoption, parental and shared parental leave), to allow effective workforce management, to ensure that Nexus complies with duties in relation to leave entitlement, and to ensure that employees are receiving the pay or other benefits to which they are entitled;
- ensure effective general HR and business administration;
- provide references on request for current or former employees;
- respond to and defend against legal claims; and maintain and promote equality in the workplace.

Some special categories of personal data, such as information about health or medical conditions, is processed to carry out employment law obligations (such as those in relation to employees with disabilities).

Where Nexus processes other special categories of personal data, such as information about ethnic origin, sexual orientation, health or religion or belief, this is done for the purposes of equal opportunities monitoring.

Who has access to data?

Your information may be shared internally, including Payroll, your line manager, managers in the business area in which you work and IT staff if access to the data is necessary for performance of their roles.

Nexus shares your data with third parties in order to obtain pre-employment references from other employers, obtain employment background checks from third-party providers. Nexus may also share your data with third parties in the context of a sale of some or all of its business. In those circumstances the data will be subject to confidentiality arrangements.

Nexus also shares your data with third parties that process data on its behalf, in connection with payroll, the provision of benefits and the provision of occupational health services.

Nexus will not transfer your data to countries outside of the United Kingdom.

For how long does Nexus keep data?

Nexus will hold your personal data for the duration of your employment and up to 6 years after your employment ceases with the company.

Your rights

As a data subject, you have a number of rights. you can:

- access and obtain a copy of your data on request;
- require Nexus to change incorrect or incomplete data;
- require Nexus to delete or stop processing your data, for example where the data is no longer necessary for the purposes of processing; and

- object to the processing of your data where Nexus is relying on its legitimate interests as the legal ground for processing.

If you would like to exercise any of these rights, please contact your line manager in the first instance.

If you believe that Nexus has not complied with your data protection rights, you can complain to the Information Commissioner.

What if you do not provide personal data?

You have some obligations under your employment contract to provide Nexus with data. In particular, you are required to report absences from work and may be required to provide information about disciplinary or other matters under the implied duty of good faith. You may also have to provide Nexus with data in order to exercise your statutory rights, such as in relation to statutory leave entitlements. Failing to provide the data may mean that you are unable to exercise your statutory rights.

Certain information, such as contact details, your right to work in the UK and payment details, have to be provided to enable Nexus to enter a contract of employment with you. If you do not provide other information, this will hinder Nexus' ability to administer the rights and obligations arising as a result of the employment relationship efficiently.
